We are very excited to announce that our designers, Emma and Kyle, have won the top prize, representing Ireland in the Design category at the Cannes Young Lions Festival.

Their brief was to create a visual branding system which would “evolve and build on the UN Women Campaign” with the ability to grow and develop over time on a national and international level.

Following the 24-hour brief set by the United Nations, they took home the Gold Award, fending off competition from over 22 other countries. This is the first time a Gold Award has been won by an Irish team at the internationally renowned creative event.
